

fab: Temporarily removed attributes references (co:ResourceName 0..*), author (m:Contact 0..*), and editor (m:Contact 0..*). Reason: They cannot have unlimited multiplicity in a type. We would have to introduce a new top-level element for ResourceMetadata. Do we really have to store detailed author and editor information? If a DOI is given in the identifier attribute, all this information should be available from the publisher's web site. Also, m:Contact seems to be a bit overkill here.

We shouldn't have an attribute publicID here, in order to avoid confusion with publicIDs of public objects. If we need a URI to identify the contact, call it differently.

